Easter Lily Has Special Meaning to Florist Here

By L. L. SCHADE
The traditional Easter lily will have greater significance this year to William H. Woehlecke than any of the past 33 years he has spent as a florist. It will be the last year he will raise the lilies in mass quantities.

Woehlecke came to Sikeston at the age of 30 and has operated a florist shop and greenhouse here for the past 40 years. He will retire in June, when he sells the remainder of his interest to the Blount brothers, David and Jerry.

He developed his interest in flowers at his first part-time job in a Florist shop in Indianapolis, Ind. That was in 1915, and he hasn't worked at anything else since. He worked as a florist there till he was 24, then moved to Streator, Ill., where he worked another six years and got married, before moving to Sikeston in 1929.

"There is more to growing lilies than meets the eye," Woehlecke said. And he should know after growing them every year since he has been here.

"Lily bulbs are set out 120 days prior to the date of Easter Sunday," Mr. Woehlecke said, and since the date changes each year, the weather can become a factor even in a glass house if you do not have sunshine."

This year he has more than 300 potted lily plants, all will be in bloom a few days before Easter, when from an eight to ten inch bulb, there will be six to seven blooms on each plant.

"In order that all plants will bloom at the same time," the experienced florist said, must hold back the heat to 65 degrees at night, and from 70 to 75 degrees in the day. By March 23, all buds were three to four inches long."

Has he ever had any bad season in his forty growing seasons here? "Not with lilies, but I had a disastrous season one year with chrysanthemums," he said.

"I developed five of my own varieties. And in the olden days you depended on a fireman to regulate your furnace in the greenhouses. One night the thermometer almost went to zero, and with it went almost $6,500 investment in chrysanthemums alone, when my fireman left the steam off the boiler."

With every successful florist,

President.

Only a handful waited when the 10-car train reached Cincinnati's Union Terminal in a steady rain, there to transfer from the Chesapeake and Ohio tracks to those of the Baltimore and Ohio—the steel ribbon across the plain taken by the funeral train of Abraham Lincoln 104 years earlier.

A memorial service at the terminal planned by Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes and the dignitaries of nearby cities had been canceled at request of the widow and family, worn by the tears and strain of three days of funeral pomp and homage in the nation's capital. Instead, the rust-flecked and dust-streaked baggage car was shunted to a wash rack in an industrial area a mile north of the terminal. A score of the surprised diners abandoned their breakfasts in a nearby restaurant and rushed outside to stand silent in the drizzle until the car, its paint gleaming again, was recoupled to the train.

Three new members were accepted into the club. They are Al Fulenwider and Dale Wolfenkoeber, both of Jackson, and Lowell Webb, Sikeston.

Plans were discussed for the Ceremonial that is to be held in Sikeston Sept. 3 for Missouri Shriners.

Laird Plans Slash In War Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Laird announced to the Senate million in additional B52 Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Armed Services Committee only operating funds. Laird, moving to cut military two weeks ago.

The defense chief mentioned spending another $613 million. His action to reduce the trimming some of the Navy's announced today plans to number of B52 sorties in the ships operating off Vietnam to reduce B52 bomber sorties and trim several naval ships in the Vietnam war.

Laird also told the House Armed Services Committee he is postponing purchase of a short-range, bomber-launched missile call SRAM until tests show whether it will work.

These actions, representing about half the $613 million, brought to more than $1.1 billion the amount of spending pared by recommended by Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam.

The new total stands at $77.9 billion for the bookkeeping year starting July 1. Pentagon officials indicated more slashes are under study.

His comments were made in a statement for delivery at a closed committee session and released earlier to newsmen.

Laird made it plain the fresh to be one of his most important spending reductions were related to weapons."

The nation is confronted with an extremely difficult and dangerous economic and fiscal situation," Laird said. He noted by a single plane.

Nixon had ordered "significant reductions" in federal budget estimates to cope with the problem.

The Pentagon chief's second whack at the defense budget in two weeks was a patchwork including stretching out some projects, deferring others—and in money, Laird sliced about in some cases reversing actions half his March 19 request for $102 million.

Translating his switch into monthly number only until July.

Proposed a 20,000 decrease in civilian personnel, probably by attrition, to save about $70 million.

Ordered a "modest stretchout" of a new air defense system called AWACS to clip $15 million from the budget.

Scaled down ground, air and naval ammunition purchases by about $157 million.

Montgomery, Mexico (AP)

— A fiery blast of methane gas trapped 145 to 168 men 1,700 feet down in a Mexican coal mine today and officials reported it may take as long as 15 days to reach all of them.

Mine company officials in Coahuila State were checking over work lists in an attempt to determine exactly how many men went down into the mine before the explosion Monday afternoon.

Lists given to reporters by the mine owners showed 168 men went down, but Ignacio Villasenor, chief engineer and local representative of the company, said his information was that 145 men entered the tunnel before the blast.

Seven bodies were recovered as of this morning. One of them was that of a rescue worker overcome by the gas.

The company is Altos Hornos de Mexico.

Gas still lingered in pockets of the two mine shafts where, according to work list data supplied by the company, the 168 men remained trapped.

The lists showed 43 miners trapped in the No. 3 shaft, where the explosion occurred.

Thieves made away with a large amount of merchandise last night at Hons Grocery, 315 South Scott.

In the sacks left behind were 19 cans of beef stew; 11 packs of toilet paper (two rolls to each pack); 22 boxes of crackers; five packs of rolls; three 2-pound boxes of fig bars; four honey bun cakes; 18 small pecan pies, and 15 Hostess cakes.

Merchandise reported stolen include 20 cans of tuna; 14 cans of beef; 10 cans of corned beef; 30 cans of potted meat, and 39 cans of Vienna sausage.

The burglary was reported near midnight.

The cash register was found broken on the floor, and several items were strewn on the floor.

Police are continuing the investigation.

Charleston Chamber Moves To Acquire New Factory

BY PEGGY GRISCOM

CHARLESTON — By tonight members of the Charleston Chamber of Commerce should know whether the city has been chosen as a location for an electrical component factory.

Early this morning three carloads of Chamber members left for Illinois to talk with representatives of the company that has its home plant in that state, and another factory in Arkansas.

A meeting concerning the factory project was held last night at the Armory with about 250 persons in attendance.

Chamber President Marion Waggoner disclosed that a 12,000 square foot building is needed to house the factory that would employ about 35 persons.

"The factory would hire people from this area too," he said.

Costs for the proposed structure and a 10-acre site are estimated at $80,000.

The two banks in Charleston agreed to loan the Chamber $20,000 each for the project. The chamber is asking donations from businesses and citizens for the remaining $40,000.

Factory officials, if they decide to locate in Charleston, will sign a two-year lease on the building and pay $500 monthly rent. If the plant operates in Charleston 15 years, the city would give the company the building and lot.

The name of the company has not been disclosed.

HOPE An aura of hope pervades the American Cancer Society's offices. No claims of miraculous cancer cures are being made - or even predicted. But, nonetheless, there is a distinct feeling the battle against the dread disease is slowly and surely being won.

The reason for this hopeful feeling can be found in many areas. Last year, for example, the President was informed that the number of Americans alive and cured of cancer had grown to 1,500,000, a hundred thousand higher than the year before. To be considered cured of most types of cancer, a person must have been free from all evidence of the disease for five years after treatment.

Discoveries of new drugs have helped in the fight against leukemia, cancer of the blood-forming tissues. These new drugs, together with more efficient utilization of earlier drugs, plus more specific techniques have helped a number of leukemia patients live beyond five years. This progress has convinced some scientists that a cure for leukemia may be found sooner than for many other types of cancer.

Other life-saving factors, the Society notes, are the increasing awareness by women of the value of the annual Pap test for uterine cancer and the slow but steady recognition by the public of the need for regular physical checkups.

These are but a few of the hopeful factors today which surround the whole subject of cancer. Yet, the battle still has a long way to go. Research must be intensified and carefully channeled, but there's a glimmer of light in the horizon. And we recommend the American Cancer Society's 1969 theme: Help yourself with a none of them are silent.

Few people are as polite to their friends as to inauguration. The results were predictable, and more than one Republican Congressman and Senator snorts that the outgoing Administration wanted it that way.

However, there is powerful bi-partisan support for a pair of bills introduced in the new Congress which supporters think will ease the explosive situation in Washington. Representative William Cramer, of Florida, has sponsored a bill which will curb the willingness of government officials to pander to revolutionaries, anarchists and other troublemakers. Cramer's bill would prevent any government officer from granting permits for camping, sleeping, sitting in or constructing any temporary shelter on government property within the District of Columbia.

And then there is the bill introduced by Senator Paul Fannin, of Arizona. It enjoys even wider endorsement. The Fannin bill would impose stiff, and mandatory sentences on persons who carry a concealed weapon or used a gun in committing a crime in Washington. Last year there were 4,600 armed robberies in Washington. Even brave men fear to walk the streets alone at night.

Any person convicted of carrying a concealed weapon or using a gun to commit a crime would, under the Fannin bill, be sentenced to a term of not less than five years. The judge could impose even heavier sentence.

That stiff a penalty should serve notice on the criminals at large in our nation's capital that the Congress is putting the lid on. We only hope that it will stiffen the spine of a judiciary which has been too lenient in the past.

Defensive Transitions Could Make Or Break New York Yankees In '69

By MIKE RATHET Peipitone.

Associated Press Sports Writer Although Manager Ralph FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. Houk realizes what Mantle's loss (AP) — Baseball, New York could mean to the Yankees after Yankee style, will be just a bit 18 years in the line-up, he does different this year—there'll be maintain that psychologically it fewer home runs and more could be an asset rather than a shortstop.

The transition from a team "Maybe the players will of thunder and lightning that think how much it's up to them relied on the home run as its now," Houk offered. "Maybe major weapon likely will become they've relied on Mantle too complete with the retirement of much. The younger guys now slugging Mickey Mantle, leaving have a greater opportunity to the Yankees with just one say: 'I'm going to have to do it,' legitimate homer hitter Joe And that's exactly what they'll have to do."

The key there is Houk's three-shortstop line-up, consisting of Tom Tresh, Jerry Kenney and Bobby Murcer.

Tresh, who last year made the transition from the outfield to shortstop, is trying now to prove he can handle the job while hitting major league pitching at the same time. Tresh batted only .195 last season.

With Houk relying on Tresh at shortstop, two young shortstops have been shifted to other positions—Kenney to center field and Murcer to third base. Their development, of course, holds the key for Houk. Kenney, 24, will be making the same transition that Mantle did 18 years ago. In the Navy last season, Kenney hit .294 at Syracuse in 1967 but does not have Mantle's power. The young speedster hit just three homers at Syracuse.

Murcer, 23, has been in the Army the last two seasons. He was the spring sensation of 1966 and has been clipping the ball regularly during the exhibition season this year. He likely will take the third base job from Bobby Cox.

Peipitone, meanwhile, moves back to first base from center field, now that Mantle has retired. The other infield spot, second base, is up for grabs right now with holdover Horace Clarke getting a stiff battle from trade-acquisition Nate Oliver.

outfield will be Roy White and Bill Robinson. The catching key also is being battled for, with Jake Gibbs being pushed by Frank Fernandez.

Pitching just might turn out to be the strong point. The starting rotation has three certain starters: 20-game winner Mel Stottlemyre, Rookie of the Year San Bahnsen and improving Fritz Peterson—while rookie Bill Burbach seems to have grabbed No. 4.

Lindy McDaniel, who had a 1.76 earned run average in 51 games last season, is the No. 1 reliever.

The Yankees are in the Eastern Division with the league's stronger teams, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, Boston and Washington. They beat out only the Senators last year but might creep past the Indians also this season.

Next: St. Louis Cardinals.

The duke spelled his name with two r's, as do his direct descendants today, but the New Mexico community dropped the extra r somewhere along the line, Bryan wrote recently.

Coin With Ike's Image

May Be Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is expected soon to consider proposals for a coin bearing former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's image.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking Committee, said he has received several suggestions along this line "and I am heartily in favor of doing something."

He said the committee, which has jurisdiction over coinage, would probably want to study precedents before considering possibilities of a special memorial coin or medal or a permanent change in the design of a coin.

2 Idea of an Afterlife Baffles Man

EDITOR'S NOTE — Even the apostles could hardly believe the phenomenon of Christ's resurrection. So, too, modern man is skeptical about the possibility of life after death. This second of five Easter articles deals with this subject.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A NEW YORK CITY girl, visiting on a Western ranch, stepped outside in the late evening. She was startled. Separated for the first time from the city illumination that veils the nighttime sky, she saw in the blackness what for her was a grand, new thing — the spangled dome of stars.

"Look, look at them!" she cried in wonder. "I never knew there were so many, and so big, and so close!"

In the stark darkness, she encountered a grandeur she had never realized existed. It was as if she had entered a strange and unknown environment, expecting only inky gloom, but she beheld astonishing glory.

In a way, to those associated with Jesus, His death was like that. They had resigned themselves to the worst. They had given up, drained of hope, plunged into an alien midnight. But there, a new fire glowed. On an impenetrable horizon there emerged an unsuspected star.

"The light shines in the darkness," says the gospel of John, "and the darkness has not overcome it."

But it was no easy arrangement, no pleasant, automatic procedure. It was couched in doubt, desperation and pain. Jesus, in partnership with humanity to its utmost extremity, went to the grave.

"Crucified, dead and buried," the ancient church creed puts it. It was a somber affair, with no false heroics about it.

"My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" He cried in the words of the Psalmist as He succumbed to the torment of six hours on the cross. "It is finished." And His straining body fell limp.

To make sure He was dead, a Roman legionnaire plunged a spear into His side, and the blood drained away, soaking back into the earth that gave it substance.

"When you're dead, you're dead," a TV comic cracked. "That's life."

... Yet Shall He Live

And it is, so far as mortal man can make it. There, at last, he tradition holds that divine goodness absorbed the results of man's basic helplessness. Yet Jesus wrongdoing, providing mercy and reformulated to share His experience with His fellow men — both the cross and the resurrection.

"Whoever loses his life for My sake will find it."

It's an odd combination — life in losing it.

In Jesus' crucifixion, Christian goodness absorbed the results of man's basic helplessness. Yet Jesus wrongdoing, providing mercy and reformulated to share His experience with His fellow men — both the cross and the resurrection.

logian, the Rev. Dr. George W.

The afterlife is not a going topic, even in religious circles.

Sermons widely avoid it, except for Easter's infectiously hopeful mood. Surveys of beliefs about it show a growing uncertainty and ambiguity.

"Rigid barriers between sacred and secular realities are breaking down," writes a Catholic Bible scholar, the Rev. William B. Frazer.

"Religious attitudes and values are being remodeled with the hope of stimulating Christians to greater respect for and participation in the secular order."

And that, from a Biblical perspective, is where the primary task lies in the course of human history.

Yet, at bottom, the ancient preoccupation with death and its imponderables lingers on, a shadow behind people's busyness and activism, a brushed-aside question, a hidden hope, a plaguing doubt.

And doubt, even disbelief, was the original reaction to the post-mortem events involving Jesus. It was, and is, the normal, environmentally conditioned attitude.

Resurrection doesn't fit the pattern. From a naturalistic standpoint, it's wild. The mind-set of

If You Were the Judge Horse Out in Cold Lead to Law Suit

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As Cousin George was driving home late one wintry night, he noticed that Farmer Jed had left his horse out. Feeling a great kinship for both man and beast, George promptly filed a complaint against Jed the next morning for cruelty to animals. In court, George was outraged.

"That night wasn't fit for a living soul to be out in," he charged. "Even I should have stayed indoors. Not only was it raining cats and dogs, but it was so cold that even the wind was howling about it."

"Maybe so," answered Farmer Jed, "but I certainly wasn't going to sit my horse down in front of the fireplace and serve it tea. First off, it doesn't like fires and secondly, it hates tea. What it does like is to stay out in the cold at night. Consequently, neither George nor the authorities have anything to complain about!"

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you find Farmer Jed guilty

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that leaving a horse out overnight despite harsh weather conditions does not in itself amount to cruelty. Nature has provided the horse with a winter coat of thick and waterproof hair, noted the judge, to protect it against the cold and rain. In fact, he pointed out, some domestic animals which live in the open are other more healthier and vigorous than those penned up. Therefore, concluded the judge, whether leaving a horse out in bad weather constitutes cruelty depends upon the physical condition of the horse and, in this case, there was no proof that Farmer Jed's horse was in poor condition and unable to stay out at night.

Little Known General Had Lasting Influence on Ike

EDITOR'S NOTE - Second Fremantle and Haskell of the five articles based on the Battle of Gettysburg. The decisive influence in toward such men and their Dwight D. Eisenhower's life as a works."

Conner never quizzed Eisenhower about a book in the manner of a teacher and student. "He was my teacher." He would introduce it into a conversation so casually that it was more like a "bull session," Eisenhower recalled. These talks took place especially when they were in the field, reconnoitering the terrain in the Canal Zone. Years later, Eisenhower would recall with the keenest pleasure sitting around a camp fire at night discussing with Conner the Battle of Gettysburg and the campaigns of the Civil War.

In his quarters, he fitted up what he called a "work room" in which he spread out large maps, special duties to him at Camp

Then along with a book, he Gaillard which, in fact, fully would trace the development of a particular campaign. To the end of his days, Eisenhower revered Gen. Conner. Their relationship constitutes one of the warmest and most touching chapters in Eisenhower's story.

They met in 1921 at Camp Meade, Md. Eisenhower, then a major, was enrolled in the Infantry Tank School there. (He graduated with an "A") One day, he was introduced to a tall, slim Mississippian, Conner. Eisenhower noted on the general's tunic the Purple Heart, symbol of a combat wound, and the Distinguished Service Medal. They had a brief discussion about tanks and tactics. That was all.

Even so, something about Eisenhower evidently impressed Conner.

When he became commander of the 20th Infantry Brigade at Camp Gaillard in the Panama Canal Zone, he asked the War Department to assign Eisenhower to his staff as his senior aide. Eisenhower and Mamie sailed for the Canal Zone Jan. 7, 1922.

Conner frequently invited Eisenhower to his quarters and Eisenhower was immediately struck by the general's library.

Naturally, it was weighted on the side of military subjects. However, he noted that the shelves were filled with everything from Shakespeare and Plato to the latest fiction, as well.

Eisenhower had an inherent taste for history, but the method of teaching in West Point had all but extinguished it. The cadets were required to learn by rote, the names of every general officer in the Battle of Gettysburg, for example, and where each was operating at a given hour, etc. Memorizing military history bored Eisenhower.

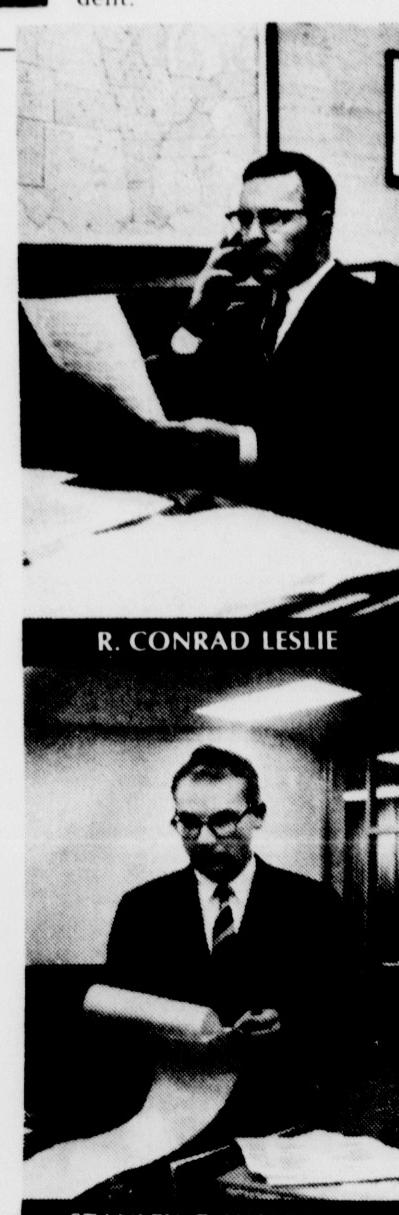

Conner discovered this. He began Eisenhower's re-education by encouraging him to read Shakespeare's accounts of battles and his portraits of soldiers. Next came Clausewitz. Eisenhower read his "On War" three times along with the works of Jomini and Roper. Then he had, at Conner's suggestion, a thorough bath of the Civil War, Grant's memoirs, Steele's full colonel before retirement "Campaigns," the accounts by but it was unlikely that he

VETERAN FLORIST William H. Woehlecke, checks his lily plants a few days ago for bulb opening. He nurtured these six pointed plants so they would be in bloom a few days before his other 300 plants bloom during this Easter season. Among his many grown flowers during 40 years in Sikeston, he has never failed to set out lily plants, but this season will be his last.

Easter Lily Has Special Meaning to Florist Here

By L. SCHADE

The traditional Easter lily will have greater significance this year to William H. Woehlecke than any of the past 53 years he has spent as a florist. It will be the last year he will raise the lilies in mass quantities.

Woehlecke came to Sikeston at the age of 30 and has operated a florist shop and greenhouse here for the past 40 years. He will retire in June, when he sells the remainder of his interest to the Blount brothers, David and Jerry.

He developed his interest in flowers at his first part-time job in a Florist shop in Indianapolis, Ind. That was in 1915, and he hasn't worked at anything else since. He worked as a florist there till he was 24, then moved to Streator, Ill., where he worked another six years and got married, before moving to Sikeston in 1929.

"There is more to growing lilies than meets the eye," Woehlecke said. And he should know after growing them every year since he has been here.

"Lily bulbs are set out 120 days prior to the date of Easter Sunday," Mr. Woehlecke said, and since the date changes each year, the weather can become a factor even in a glass house if you do not have sunshine."

This year he has more than 300 potted lily plants, all will be in bloom a few days before Easter, when from an eight to ten inch bulb, there will be six to seven blooms on each plant.

"In order that all plants will bloom at the same time," the experienced florist said, "we must hold back the heat to 65 degrees at night, and from 70 to 75 degrees in the day. By March 23, all buds were three to four inches long."

Has he ever had any bad season in his forty growing seasons here? "Not with lilies, but I had a disastrous season one year with chrysanthemums," he said.

"I developed five of my own varieties. And in the olden days you depended on a fireman to regulate your furnace in the greenhouses. One night the thermometer almost went to zero, and with it went almost $6,500 investment in chrysanthemums alone, when my fireman left the steam off the boiler."

With every successful florist, projects.

They do not hold back on their two sons, both of whom are married and successful. Edward Woehlecke is an agricultural graduate with the W. R. Grace chemical plant in Arthur, Ill., while William D. Woehlecke, is also an agricultural graduate, as a branch manager of a cooperative electrical plant in Tucson, Ariz.

The seasoned florist, although retired from the only business he knew, will by 70 in June, but he is not putting the garden trowel aside for good. He is giving consideration to joining a vegetable growing project, that will keep him close to growing projects.

A score of the surprised diners abandoned their breakfasts in a nearby restaurant and rushed outside to stand silent in the drizzle until the car, its paint gleaming again, was recoupled to the train.

Three new members were accepted into the club. They are Al Fulenwider and Dale Wolfenkoechler, both of Jackson, and Lowell Webb, Sikeston.

Plans were discussed for the Ceremonial that is to be held in Sikeston Sept. 3 for Missouri Shriners.

In groups of hundreds and crowds of thousands gathered at towns and crossings throughout the long night-time pull across Virginia, through the Alleghenies and over the Ohio, Americans paid silent homage at the trackside to the 34th American President.

Only a handful waited when the 10-car train reached Cincinnati's Union Terminal in a steady rain, there to transfer from the Chesapeake and Ohio tracks to those of the Baltimore and Ohio—the steel ribbon across the plain taken by the funeral train of Abraham Lincoln 104 years earlier.

Laird Plans Slash In War Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Laird announced to the Senate million in additional B52 Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, moving to cut military spending another $613 million. His action to reduce the trimming some of the Navy's announced today plans to reduce B52 bomber sorties and trim several naval ships in the Vietnam war was a switch from his March 19 position and amounts to at least a partial reinstatement of a Johnson administration plan.

Laird also told the House Armed Services Committee he is postponing purchase of a short-range, bomber-launched missile called SRAM until tests show whether it will work.

These actions, representing about half the $613 million, brought to more than $1.1 billion the amount of spending pared by Laird from the Johnson administration's final defense budget for fiscal 1970.

The new total stands at $77.9 billion for the bookkeeping year starting July 1. Pentagon officials indicated more slashes are under study.

His comments were made in a statement for delivery at a rate beyond June 1969." The defense secretary did not repeat his March 19 statement that Abrams "considers the B52

Laird made it plain the fresh to be one of his most important to President Nixon's call for extension of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

"The nation is confronted with an extremely difficult and dangerous economic and fiscal situation," Laird said. He noted by a single plane. Nixon had ordered "significant reductions" in federal budget estimates to cope with the problem.

The Pentagon chief's second whack at the defense budget in two weeks was a patchwork including stretching out some projects, deferring others—and in some cases reversing actions

Translating his switch into money, Laird sliced about half his March 19 request for $102 million by about $157 million.

Lopped another $31 million from the Manned Orbiting Laboratory program. This means the MOL, originally to orbit with a man by late last year, probably won't do so until early 1972—if then.

Proposed a 20,000 decrease in civilian personnel, probably by attrition, to save about $70 million.

Ordered a "modest stretchout" of a new air defense system called AWACS to clip $15 million from the budget.

It was about 11:30 a.m. when he was engaged in taking the beans from the 3,300 bushel bin. The bin was about two thirds full.

Keller crawled from the bin from the top when he noticed that trash was giving trouble in sending the beans to auger at the bottom of the bin.

He jumped in and was up to his knees in soybeans. A slide caused the grain to come up to his neck, then over his head. Only his outstretched hands were showing in the 15-foot high bin. He became unconscious for a few minutes.

He had called for help when he saw the beans began to cover him, but running motors kept two men on the outside from hearing him. His son Robert Jr., finally heard him calling for help. He went to the top; saw the predicament, and ordered the men to chop a hole in the bottom of the bin to force more beans out.

Seven bodies were recovered as of this morning. One of them was that of a rescue worker overcome by the gas.

The company is Altos Hornos de Mexico.

Gas still lingered in pockets of the two mine shafts where, according to work list data supplied by the company, the 168 men remained trapped.

The lists showed 43 miners trapped in the No. 3 shaft, where the explosion occurred.

He was taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital for observation, but this morning stated he was feeling fairly well. Keller claimed the pressure of the beans all around him was very great, and he could not have lasted much longer.

Thieves made away with a large amount of merchandise last night at Hons Grocery, 315 South Scott.

In the sacks left behind were 19 cans of beef stew; 11 packs of toilet paper (two rolls to each pack); 22 boxes of crackers; five packs of rolls; three - 2-pound boxes of fig bars; four honey bun cakes; 18 small pecan pies, and 15 Hostess cakes.

Merchandise reported stolen include 20 cans of tuna; 14 cans of beef; 10 cans of corned beef; 30 cans of potted meat, and 39 cans of Vienna sausage.

The burglary was reported near midnight.

The cash register was found broken on the floor, and several items were strewn on the floor.

Police are continuing the investigation.

Nixon to Attend Burial

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — President Nixon will fly to Florida for his Easter vacation after attending the burial services for former President Eisenhower Wednesday. The Nixon family will return to Washington late Sunday night after spending the religious holiday weekend at their Key Biscayne retreat.

He advised his wife, First Lady Pat Nixon, that he would attend the funeral.

A former New York actress who gave up the stage for a home in West Point and marriage to Owen McCollum, a druggist, Mrs. McCollum has been in radio and television in the mid-Mississippi area for more than 10 years. She travels all over the country speaking to various organizations.

Cavett Robert, Phoenix, Ariz., who recently heard the Mississippi Belle speak, writes that "every married couple in America should hear her presentation."

Mrs. McCollum also said her three short cuts to beauty is a way to get around the widespread feeling that European women know more about pleasing men than American women do.

"European women," she said, "are taught at an early age that they must make a man the center of their lives, that a man's masculinity is his ego and that love and communications are important in the giving of oneself to a man. The woman are taught that their main function is to please a man."

"American women, on the other hand, tend to pick up the idea of giving themselves in exchange for something rather than because they are women who want to please their man."

The Mississippi Missus believes women should be subservient to men.

"Find me a woman who is dominated by a strong, intelligent man and I will show you the happiest woman on the block," Mrs. McCollum said.

"Find me a woman who dominates her man and I will show you a shrew who is aging before her time."

She advises women that it is important to build "your love and life around your man. And it's important to be yourself. That's what it is."

Early this morning three carloads of Chamber members left for Illinois to talk with representatives of the company that has its home plant in that state, and another factory in Arkansas.

A meeting concerning the factory prospect was held last night at the Armory with about 250 persons in attendance.

Chamber President Marion Waggoner disclosed that a 12,000 square foot building is needed to house the factory that would employ about 35 persons.

The factory would hire people from this area too," he said.

Costs for the proposed structure and a 10-acre site are estimated at $80,000. The two banks in Charleston agreed to loan the Chamber $20,000 each for the project. The chamber is asking donations from businesses and citizens for the remaining $40,000.

Factory officials, if they decide to locate in Charleston, will sign a two-year lease on the building and pay $500 monthly rent. If the plant operates in Charleston 15 years, the city would give the company the building and lot.

The name of the company has not been disclosed.

HOPE

An aura of hope pervades the American Cancer Society's offices. No claims of miraculous cancer cures are being made -- or even predicted. But, nonetheless, there is a distinct feeling the battle against the dread disease is slowly and surely being won.

The reason for this hopeful feeling can be found in many areas. Last year, for example, the President was informed that the number of Americans alive and cured of cancer had grown to 1,500,000, a hundred thousand higher than the year before. To be considered cured of most types of cancer, a person must have been free from all evidence of the disease for five years after treatment.

Discoveries of new drugs have helped in the fight against leukemia, cancer of the blood-forming tissues. These new drugs, together with more efficient utilization of earlier drugs, plus more specific techniques have helped a number of leukemia patients live beyond five years. This progress has convinced some scientists that a cure for leukemia may be found sooner than for many other types of cancer.

Other life-saving factors, the Society notes, are the increasing awareness by women of the value of the annual Pap test for uterine cancer and the slow but steady recognition by the public of the need for regular physical checkups.

These are but a few of the hopeful factors today which surround the whole subject of cancer. Yet, the battle still has a long way to go. Research must be intensified and carefully channeled, but there's a glimmer of light in the horizon. And we recommend the American Cancer Society's 1969 theme: Help yourself with a checkup and others with a check.

However, there is powerful bi-partisan support for a pair of bills introduced in the new Congress which supporters think will ease the explosive situation in Washington. Representative William Cramer, of Florida, has sponsored a bill which will curb the willingness of government officials to pander to revolutionaries, anarchists and other troublemakers. Cramer's bill would prevent any government officer from granting permits for camping, sleeping, sitting in or constructing any temporary shelter on government property within the District of Columbia.

And then there is the bill introduced by Senator Paul Fannin, of Arizona. It enjoys even wider endorsement.

The Fannin bill would impose stiff, and mandatory sentences on persons who carry a concealed weapon or used a gun in committing a crime in Washington. Last year there were 4,600 armed robberies in Washington. Even brave men fear to walk the streets alone at night.

However, there is powerful bi-partisan support for a pair of bills introduced in the new Congress which supporters think will ease the explosive situation in Washington. Representative William Cramer, of Florida, has sponsored a bill which will curb the willingness of government officials to pander to revolutionaries, anarchists and other troublemakers. Cramer's bill would prevent any government officer from granting permits for camping, sleeping, sitting in or constructing any temporary shelter on government property within the District of Columbia.

And then there is the bill introduced by Senator Paul Fannin, of Arizona. It enjoys even wider endorsement.

The Fannin bill would impose stiff, and mandatory sentences on persons who carry a concealed weapon or used a gun in committing a crime in Washington. Last year there were 4,600 armed robberies in Washington. Even brave men fear to walk the streets alone at night.

HOPE

An aura of hope pervades the American Cancer Society's offices. No claims of miraculous cancer cures are being made -- or even predicted. But, nonetheless, there is a distinct feeling the battle against the dread disease is slowly and surely being won.

The reason for this hopeful feeling can be found in many areas. Last year, for example, the President was informed that the number of Americans alive and cured of cancer had grown to 1,500,000, a hundred thousand higher than the year before. To be considered cured of most types of cancer, a person must have been free from all evidence of the disease for five years after treatment.

Discoveries of new drugs have helped in the fight against leukemia, cancer of the blood-forming tissues. These new drugs, together with more efficient utilization of earlier drugs, plus more specific techniques have helped a number of leukemia patients live beyond five years. This progress has convinced some scientists that a cure for leukemia may be found sooner than for many other types of cancer.

Other life-saving factors, the Society notes, are the increasing awareness by women of the value of the annual Pap test for uterine cancer and the slow but steady recognition by the public of the need for regular physical checkups.

Bulldog Netmen Lose

By TERRY NOWELL
Coach John Brooke's SHS tennis squad took their first loss of the season last Saturday as their Cape Central opponents took a clean sweep on the Sikeston courts. This match sets the Bulldogs at 2-1 for the young season.

It turned out to be a very uneventful contest for the Bulldogs as Hunter Moore was downed 8-0, Keith Colley 8-1, David Owens 8-1, David Fatten 8-1, and Chuck Leible 8-3 in the individual matches.

In the double contests, Sikeston Patten - Owens combination was defeated 8-1, and the Hunter-Leible team was also outpointed 8-1.

Members of the team who did not play in the match were Busby Fatten, Jeff Comer, Tom Smith, and Blain Hipes.

Team's main disadvantage this year seems to be a lack of experience and depth. Squad has no returning lettermen, but is supported by provisional lettermen David Owens and David Fatten. Remainder of the squad is made up of freshmen and sophomores.

On the brighter side of the team's performance, Coach Brooke stated that "the boys are developing excellent form in jumping the net after the match."

N. P. McDaniel, SHS baseball coach, lent encouragement to the squad as he told them "the only thing they have to learn to do now is get the ball back over the net."

Babs Recovered 42 Years After Crash

By GLENN GOODEY

PENDINE, Wales (AP) — A racing car called Babs, buried 42 years ago after a fatal attempt on the world's land speed record, has been exhumed from its grave under a Welsh sand dune.

One and a half ton Babs—once the fastest car in the world—crashed at more than 170 miles per hour on Pendine Sands, Carmarthenshire in 1927.

World champion driver Jeffrey Parry Thomas was trying to set a land-speed record when the car's chain drive broke. In the crash the chain decapitated Thomas.

Villagers from the nearby village of Pendine buried the car under a sand dune and it became something of a shrine.

This year people were angry when Owen Wyn Owen, a Welsh lecturer, wanted to recover the wreckage and restore it. After petitions and public meetings, however, they agreed to his request.

On Sunday a mechanical digger cracked the nine inches of concrete under which Babs was buried and Owen carefully finished the work with a hand trowel.

The blue and white car, 20 feet long and with a 400 horsepower aero-engine, was found lying on its side eight-feet down. Only one wheel remained, parts of the aluminum body had rotted away.

But Owen hopes to restore Babs to working order and put it on display in Pendine. Thomas was killed trying to regain the title.

Campbell broke the record at 146 m.p.h. on the seven-mile stretch of sands. Two years later, he pushed the speed up to 150 m.p.h.

Thomas snatched the record with a speed of 169 m.p.h. in 1926 and later broke his own record with a drive of 171 m.p.h.

Campbell returned later in 1926 and clocked 174 m.p.h. And Thomas was killed trying to regain the title.

Defensive Transitions Could Make Or Break New York Yankees In '69

By MIKE RATHET Pepitone.
Associated Press Sports Writer. Although Manager Ralph FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. Houk realizes what Mantle's loss (AP) — Baseball, New York could mean to the Yankees after Yankee style, will be just a bit 18 years in the line-up, he does different this year—there'll be maintain that psychologically it fewer home runs and more could be an asset rather than a debit.

The transition from a team of thunder and lightning that think how much it's up to them relied on the home runs as now," Houk offered. "Maybe major weapon likely will become they've relied on Mantle too complete with the retirement of much. The younger guys now slugging Mickey Mantle, leaving have a greater opportunity to the Yankees with just one say: I'm going to have to do it." legitimate homer hitter—Joe And that's exactly what they'll

The key there is Houk's three-shortstop line-up, consisting of Tom Tresh, Jerry Kenney and Bobby Murcer.

Tresh, who last year made the transition from the outfield to shortstop, is trying now to prove he can handle the job while hitting major league pitching at the same time. Tresh batted only .195 last season.

With Houk relying on Tresh at shortstop, two young shortstops have been shifted to other positions—Kenney to center field and Murcer to third base. Their development, of course, holds the key for Houk.

Kenney, 24, will be making the same transition that Mantle did 18 years ago. In the Navy last season, Kenney hit .294 at Syracuse in 1967 but does not have Mantle's power. The young speedster hit just three homers at Syracuse.

Murcer, 23, has been in the Army the last two seasons. He was the spring sensation of 1966 and has been clipping the ball regularly during the exhibition season this year. He likely will take the third base job from Bobby Cox.

Pepitone, meanwhile, moves back to first base from center field, now that Mantle has retired. The other infield spot, Boston and Washington. They beat out second base, is up for grabs right now with holdover Horace Clarke getting a stiff battle from trade-acquisition Nate Oliver.

Next: St. Louis Flanking Kenney in the Cardinals.

Coin With Ike's Image May Be Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is expected soon to consider proposals for a coin bearing former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's image.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking Committee, said he has received several suggestions along this line "and I am heartily in favor of doing something."

He said the committee, which has jurisdiction over coinage, would probably want to study precedents before considering possibilities of a special memorial coin or medal or a permanent change in the design of a coin.

If You Were the Judge Horse Out in Cold Lead to Law Suit

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As Cousin George was driving home late one wintry night, he noticed that Farmer Jed had left his horse out. Feeling a great kinship for both man and beast, George promptly filed a complaint against Jed the next morning for cruelty to animals. In court, George was outraged.

"That night wasn't fit for a living soul to be out in," he charged. "Even I should have stayed indoors. Not only was it raining cats and dogs, but it was so cold that even the wind was howling about it."

"Maybe so," answered Farmer Jed, "but I certainly wasn't going to sit my horse down in front of the fireplace and serve it tea. First off, it doesn't like fires secondly, it hates tea. What it does like is to stay out in the cold at night. Consequently, neither George nor the authorities have anything to complain about!"

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you find Farmer Jed guilty of cruelty to animals?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that leaving a horse out overnight despite harsh weather conditions does not in itself amount to cruelty. Nature has provided the horse with a winter coat of thick and waterproof hair, noted the judge, to protect it against the cold and rain. In fact, he pointed out, some domestic animals which live in the open are other more healthier and vigorous than those penned up. Therefore, concluded the judge, whether leaving a horse out in bad weather constitutes cruelty depends upon the physical condition of the horse and, in this case, there was no proof that Farmer Jed's horse was in poor condition and unable to stay out at night.

2 Idea of an Afterlife Baffles Man

EDITOR'S NOTE — Even the apostles could hardly believe the phenomenon of Christ's resurrection. So, too, modern man is skeptical about the possibility of life after death. This second of five Easter articles deals with this subject.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A NEW YORK CITY girl, visiting on a Western ranch, stepped outside in the late evening. She was startled. Separated for the first time from the city illumination that veils the nighttime sky she saw in the blackness what for her was a grand, new thing — the spangled dome of stars.

"Look, look at them!" she cried in wonder. "I never knew there were so many, and so big, and so close!"

In the dark darkness, she encountered a grandeur she had never realized existed. It was as if she had entered a strange and unknown environment, expecting only inky gloom, but she beheld astonishing glory.

In a way, to those associated with Jesus, His death was like that. They had resigned themselves to the worst. They had given up, drained of hope, plunged into an alien midnight. But there, a new fire glowed. On an impenetrable horizon there emerged an unsuspected star.

"The light shines in the darkness," says the gospel of John, "and the darkness has not overcome it."

But it was no easy arrangement, no pleasant, automatic procedure. It was couched in doubt, desperation and pain. Jesus, in partnership with humanity to its utmost extremity, went to the grave.

"Crucified, dead and buried, the ancient church creed puts it. It was a somber affair, with no false heroics about it."

"My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" He cried in the words of the Psalmist as He succumbed to the torment of six hours on the cross. "It is finished." And His straining body fell limp.

To make sure He was dead, a Roman legioinaire plunged a spear into His side, and the blood drained away, soaking back into the earth that gave it substance.

"When you're dead, you're dead," a TV comic cracked.

"That's life."

... Yet Shall He Live

And it is, so far as mortal man can make it. There, at last, faces a no longer deniable fact.

Who underwent man's inhumanity to break its deadly hold and to share His experience with His fellow men — both the cross and the resurrection.

"Whoever loses his life for My sake will find it."

It's an odd combination — life in losing it.

In Jesus's crucifixion, Christian tradition holds that divine goodness absorbed the results of man's basic helplessness. Yet Jesus wrongdoing, providing mercy and atone for others through which others could him a new chance to become what he was meant to be.

In dying for the love of man, He is regarded as having it gets on the track of them," says philosopher R. F. Holland.

Yet science so far has no figures or formulas to fit the singular phenomenon of the resurrection, and its statistical methods can't deal directly with any unique case in history that can't be duplicated.

Doubts of Reality

The resurrection, as portrayed in Scripture, lay outside man's spacio-temporal bounds. Yet even within those bounds, the differentiation between life and death has become ever more baffling, indeterminate and ambiguous.

Processes merge into one another, forming an invisible continuum, and medical research now recognizes that its dividing lines are simply arbitrary and conventional.

Man has long realized that the very cells, bones and tissues of his anatomy are completely changed many times in his lifetime, being totally replaced about every seven years, leaving him the same person with a new body.

His conscious life is considerably shorter than his psychic life, being reduced about a third by sleep, and often more on the verge of death, when psychic functions seem to abandon coordination with the old body.

Yet the powerful interplay of psychic and physical elements in man has swept aside the previous mechanistic views of human biology.

The common doubts about the resurrection arise, not from insufficient historical data, but because it violates man's uniform, ordinary experience and also the powerfully dominating hypotheses of science at the present stage.

Yet, contrary to popular impressions, it doesn't violate the most advanced scientific approach, which is increasingly open to the unexpected, the incongruous, the upsetting or previously assumed conclusions.

They were "perplexed . . . did not believe," the accounts say. Even after He first appeared to them, they "still disbelieved for joy, and wondered."

The Book of Revelation calls Him "the Living One . . . Who underwrote man's inhumanity to break its deadly hold and to share His experience with His fellow men — both the cross and the resurrection.

"Whoever loses his life for My sake will find it."

It's an odd combination — life in losing it.

Little Known General Had Lasting Influence on Ike

The decisive influence in toward such men and their Dwight D. Eisenhower's life as a man

Eisenhower about a book in the manner of a teacher and student.

He would introduce it into a conversation so casually that it was more like a "bull session."

Eisenhower recalled. These talks took place especially when they were in the field, reconnoitering the terrain in the Canal Zone. Years later, Eisenhower broadened his understanding of the relation between war and geopolitics, revived an interest in military history that had been stifled in West Point, and introduced him to what Eisenhower called "the great world of writing and thinking."

To the end of his days, Eisenhower revered Gen. Conner. Their relationship constitutes one of the warmest and most touching chapters in Eisenhower's story.

They met in 1921 at Camp Meade, Md., Eisenhower, then a major, was enrolled in the Infantry Tank School there. (He graduated with an "A.") One day, he was introduced to a tall, slim Mississippian, Conner.

Eisenhower noted on the general's tunic the Purple Heart, symbol of a combat wound, and the Distinguished Service Medal.

They had a brief discussion about tanks and tactics. That was all.

Even so, something about Eisenhower evidently impressed Conner.

When he became commander of the 20th Infantry Brigade at Camp Gaillard in the Panama Canal Zone, he asked the War Department to assign Eisenhower to his staff as his senior aide. Eisenhower and Mamie sailed for the Canal Zone Jan. 7, 1922.

Conner frequently invited Eisenhower to his quarters and Eisenhower was immediately struck by the general's library.

Naturally, it was weighted on the side of military subjects.

However, he noted that the shelves were filled with everything from Shakespeare and Plato to the latest fiction, as well.

Eisenhower had an inherent taste for history, but the method of teaching in West Point had all but extinguished it. The cadets were required to learn by rote, the names of every general officer in the Battle of Gettysburg, for example, and where each was operating, at a given hour, etc. Memorizing military history bored Eisenhower.

Conner discovered this. He began Eisenhower's re-education by encouraging him to read Shakespeare's accounts of battles and his portraits of soldiers.

Until then, Eisenhower had never envisioned himself wearing a general's stars. The spirit of isolationism pervaded America in the 1920's and even the small peacetime Army was shrinking.

Hence, Eisenhower calculated that he might reach the rank of Grant's memoirs, Steele's full colonel before retirement "Campaigns," the accounts by but it was unlikely that he would rise higher.

Conner suggested that he should try for an appointment to the Command and General Staff School. He did more. After Eisenhower's tour of duty ended at Camp Gaillard, Conner pulled the wires that eventually opened the school's doors to him. He accomplished this through a series of intricate maneuvers of which Eisenhower was unaware at the time. Only an officer experienced in the mysterious and labyrinthine workings of the War Department could have done it.

Eisenhower was thrilled when he was ordered to report to the General Staff School but he had some misgivings about himself. Was he ready for it? He had not commanded troops in combat, had served in only a few posts, and his experience generally was limited. Conner, in a letter, reminded him that he in his quarters, he fitted up what he called a "work room" in which he spread out large maps. Then along with a book, he Gaillard which, in fact, fully would trace the development of prepared him for the grueling examinations he would face at a particular campaign. In this way, he once told me, he studied the school.

In so doing, it is evident that operations at Austerlitz and Conner saw in Eisenhower the last qualities that potentially could elevate him to the highest ranks in minute detail Napoleon's in the Infantry Tank School there. (He graduated with an "A.") One day, he was introduced to a tall, slim Mississippian, Conner.

Eisenhower noted on the general's tunic the Purple Heart, symbol of a combat wound, and the Distinguished Service Medal.

They had a brief discussion about tanks and tactics. That was all.

Even so, something about Eisenhower evidently impressed Conner.

When he became commander of the 20th Infantry Brigade at Camp Gaillard in the Panama Canal Zone, he asked the War Department to assign Eisenhower to his staff as his senior aide. Eisenhowe and Mamie sailed for the Canal Zone Jan. 7, 1922.

Conner frequently invited Eisenhower to his quarters and Eisenhower was immediately struck by the general's library.

Naturally, it was weighted on the side of military subjects.

However, he noted that the shelves were filled with everything from Shakespeare and Plato to the latest fiction, as well.

Eisenhower had an inherent taste for history, but the method of teaching in West Point had all but extinguished it. The cadets were required to learn by rote, the names of every general officer in the Battle of Gettysburg, for example, and where each was operating, at a given hour, etc. Memorizing military history bored Eisenhower.

Conner discovered this. He began Eisenhower's re-education by encouraging him to read Shakespeare's accounts of battles and his portraits of soldiers.

Until then, Eisenhower had never envisioned himself wearing a general's stars. The spirit of isolationism pervaded America in the 1920's and even the small peacetime Army was shrinking.

Hence, Eisenhower calculated that he might reach the rank of
